

Abstract of Disclosure

- [0056] A protective cover for vehicles is configured to fully protect a vehicle from paint overspray, yet avoids surfaces scratches induced by existing debris. An elastic band having a high stretch ratio aids in both cover placement and reduce movement to further minimize risk of damage to painted surface. The protective cover is preferably fabricated from thin gauge transparent plastic sheeting; such that the low cost makes the product desirable as it can be disposed of after being contaminated by a single use.
